He, al-might-y, now lacks all things, he, the light by night come down;
he who gives de-light in heav-en, who the world in wis-dom planned.
make me rich through your pri-va-tion, may your bond-age set me free, he, the good, so pure and gen-tle, finds no lodg-ing in his town.

See how frag-ile is this in-fant who holds all things in his hand.
may your sor-row make me joy-ful, may your death give life to me.
